The International School of Advanced Studies (SISSA) is one of the leading scientific institutions in Italy for postgraduate training in Physics, Mathematics, and Neuroscience.

SISSA is fully devoted to PhD training, hence the set of courses the students are offered during their first year is particularly broad, advanced and intense.

The Theoretical Particle Physics group plans to host selected Ph.D. students from other institutions for a period ranging from a single three-months term to the entire academic year (three terms), and offer them the possibility to attend its courses.

The 2018/19 offer can be found here <http://www.sissa.it/tpp/phdsection/courses.php> (see also <http://www.sissa.it/physics-teaching-offer> for the full set of Physics courses). SISSA and ICTP also host a wide spectrum of seminars and advanced activities.

A partial financial support of approximately 500 euros/month towards living expenses can be provided if necessary. Details on how to apply can be found at <http://www.sissa.it/tpp/vstp/>
