TREVI FOUNTAIN and the ANCIENT WATER STREETS

September 26th (evening)

Fontana di Trevi, surely the most famous and spectacular fountain of Rome, built by the sculptor Gian Lorenzo Bernini in 1629, commissioned by Pope Urbano VIII. Its fame is also due to the famous bath by night of Anita Eckberg in the movie by Federico Fellini: "La dolce Vita".

The Vicus Caprarius, also known as "The City of Water", is an archaeological area in the district of Trevi. This spectacular site is a recent excavation of an imperial roman quarter. The area is located 8 meters underground, in a suggestive atmosphere, and preserves the look of the activity in the center of Rome from I till V century a.D.
